CHARGED WITH FORGING CHECK

Used Littlestown Resident's Name on Check on Banking Institution in that Town. Recently Released from Penitentiary.

Using the name of Charles F. McCaffery on a check for $65 drawn on the Littlestown Savings Institution, Charles L. Henry, recently pardoned after serving part of a sentence in a Maryland penitentiary, is now wanted on a charge of forgery. Mr. McCaffery is a successful plumber in Littlestown.

Charles L. Henry, was the star witness before the recent O'Dunne penitentiary investigating committee in Maryland, and who was pardoned by Governor Goldsborough soon after the report of the committee was made, because of his services in furnishing information, may resume his residence in that institution if charges made against him in Hagerstown are proved.

On Wednesday a warrant was sworn out for Henry before Justice Doub, of that place, charging him with forging and passing a check for $65. The check was cashed at the Hagerstown Bank after it had been endorsed by Hunter C. Weigle, whose brother had been a fellow prisoner in the penitentiary with Henry and who had played the part of Good Samaritan to the newly pardoned man, with whom he sympathized.

Henry and John S. Weigle, it appears, had become friends while serving together in the prison and Weigle told the other of his brother in Hagerstown. When Henry was released he struck out for Hagerstown, arriving there Tuesday, February 4. He was exhausted, wet and almost frozen when he appeared at the Weigle home, but when he told of his acquaintance with John S. Weigle he was taken in and treated as an honored guest. His new-found friends even took his shoes off, put his feet in warm water and then dried them in the kitchen oven.

The story of Henry's stay and doings there is told by Hunter C. Weigle as follows:

"When he came to our home February 4th and said my brother had sent him, we took him in and did everything we could for him. He told us of John and there was nothing too mean for him to say about the warden of the penitentiary. He told us he had no money and wished to go home to visit his sisters. Columbia, S. C. I gave him $15 and he left the next day, Wednesday.

"On February 16 he reappeared at our home and stated that he had been to Columbia. A few days after his arrival, he said, his eldest sister, Flossie, was married to Charles McCaffery, of Littlestown, Pa., that McCaffery was a wealthy man, had been touched by the former convict, had invited him to visit the McCafferys at Littlestown and had sent him a check."

Henry produced the following letter, which he said he had received from his brother-in-law to hand to the Weigles:

Littlestown, Pa., Feb. 15, 1913.
Mr. Hunter and Family: I now take the opportunity to thank you all for the kindness that you showed to Chas. in his trouble, and both me and my wife are more than pleased to know that he has a friend like you people now.

Mr. Weigle, just as soon as we get fixed up here we want you to come and make us a nice long visit; both you and your family have our most hearty sympathy and Flossie thinks she will be able to help you out in your troubles. I am sure we will do all we can; now Mr. Weigle I am giving Chas. money enough to pay you for what you let him have and now you must come down soon. Yours as a friend,
MR. CHARLES F. McCAFFERY.

"Notice," continued Mr. Weigle, "how he spelled the word sympathy. Well, with the letter he produced a check drawn on the Littlestown Savings Institution, and purporting to be signed by Charles F. McCaffery. It was for $65.

"Henry asked my father and myself to cash it, telling us to retain the $15 we had loaned him previously. This was on a Sunday and he was very impatient when we told him we did not have the money in the house. "The next morning I went with him to the bank, identified him, indorsed the check and he got his $65. He did not offer to repay the $15 loan, however, so that, altogether, he got $80 from us. He bought some new clothes, came around and said good-bye and then disappeared. The check was bogus and I had to make it good to the bank. After buying the new clothes, Henry had about $37 left and I suppose he has been able with this to go a long way from here."

THINK AXE WAS USED BY VANDAL

Measurements Indicate that Larger Weapon than First Supposed was Used to Disfigure Battlefield Memorials.

That the vandal who defaced nine monuments on the battlefield Tuesday evening used the butt end of an axe for his fiendish work and that he went down the Taneytown Road after completing the outrage are two of the most recent deductions in the case which has aroused more interest than anything Gettysburg has produced in years.

Measurements have been taken of the damaged portions of the memorials and it is believed from these that it was not a hammer but a good stout axe which was used as a weapon in the attack. Footprints leading from the monuments on Howe avenue and going down along the Taneytown Road are believed to have been those of the guilty party. It has been thought all along that the monuments in that portion of the field were the last to be visited.

At the monument of the Fifth Corps on Sedgwick avenue the print of a horse hoof was noticed the day following the discovery of the damage but no such traces were left elsewhere and that the man was traveling on foot is the conclusion now reached. The damage found could, in every instance, have been done by a man standing on the ground with a long handled axe.

The unmoored monuments on the battlefield should be protected with regiments of soldiers, if necessary, according to the Harrisburg Telegraph which says editorially:

"One finds it hard to account for a state of moral depravity which could prompt a man to commit such outrages as the vandalism at Gettysburg, where nine handsome monuments on the battlefield were deliberately ruined by hammer blows.

"The outrage is not comparable with the slashing out of celebrated paintings in European art galleries which have agitated the whole world within recent years, for in those instances the despoiler made off with the canvases, or hoped to; but the monument vandal had no other purpose than to destroy.

"It seems particularly unfortunate that the desecration should have occurred in the midst of preparations for the great semicentennial reunion of Confederate veterans and Grand Army men on that sacred field where the fate of America was decided. The sight of these mutilated memorials will wound the old soldiers deeply, and there is not sufficient time to repair the damage, even though there were unlimited money at hand to do it.

"The criminal is supposed to have been a disappointed office seeker and it is indeed fortunate for the office, if not for the monuments, that he was disappointed.

"If he can be found and convicted, he should receive the heaviest sentence the law permits, and while he is still at large the remaining monuments should be guarded with regiments of soldiers if necessary."

RUN STOPPED

Small Run on Carlisle Bank is soon Stopped.

A small run was made on the Carlisle Trust Company Friday morning when a report was circulated that the bank was short of funds. The run however, was stopped before $10,000 had been withdrawn. Three weeks ago Harry Hertzler resigned as president of the institution and just a week ago judgments for $12,000 were entered against him. Some persons put the stories together and circulated the report that the bank had failed. Officials of the institution say they have entered judgment of $2,000 against Hertzler but that does not affect the standing of the company. They say the institution has never enjoyed such prosperity as it is enjoying at the present time.

ic Organization.

SOME COUNTY

Other County in the District Has no
Place for Prisoners.

Fulton County not only has no railroad, but is also backward in other things. The three men, who are charged with committing the bold robbery at Whips Cove, on February 15, were taken to McConnellsburg from Hagerstown. They wanted to be tried at the March term of court, but it was found that not enough jurors had been drawn for such a case. They will therefore have to wait six months. Now the authorities don't know what to do with the prisoners. The jail is not strong enough to hold them and the new steel cage is not big enough to keep three men in it.

WILSON FOR STRICT ECONOMY

May Eliminate Labor Clause From Sundry Civil Bill.

EXPLAIN PATRONAGE RULE

Heads of Departments Will Receive Applications and Make Recommendations to the President.

Washington, March 8. — President Wilson took under consideration economy of administration and so-called class legislation.

Representative Fitzgerald, chairman of the house appropriations committee, discussing with the president the question of appropriations for the coming extra session, recalled that Mr. Taft had vetoed the sundry civil bill because of provisions to prevent the government from using a certain sum to enforce the Sherman law against labor unions or farmers' organizations. President Wilson took a firm position, it was said, behind Mr. Fitzgerald for rigid economy. It is known that he looked apprehensively from Trenton at the appropriations of the last congress.

Mr. Wilson had before him in New Jersey a situation where labor organizations of the state, prompted by Samuel Gompers, president of the American Federation of Labor, objected vigorously to one of his "sundry sisters" antitrust laws, on the ground that it restricted labor unions from making agreements with corporations or individuals as to wages, hours, etc.

They suggested that the bill be amended, but Mr. Wilson insisted that such an amendment would be class legislation, forbidden under the New Jersey constitution. He contended, too, that New Jersey courts had not and could not include labor unions within the scope of corporation regulations. Federal legislation, he told the labor leaders, might be different.

Some of the president's friends think that if the provisions exempting labor unions from prosecution were included in the sundry civil bill again Mr. Wilson would be inclined to urge their elimination, preferring to postpone the enactment of his policy until a revision of the Sherman antitrust law was attempted.

The president is known to be in favor of strengthening the Sherman antitrust law so that its jurisdiction may be explicitly understood.

Though office-seekers have been told to address themselves to the heads of the various departments, the members of the cabinet will act merely as sifters of the mass of applicants and their decisions will not be final.

Published statements that the administration's policy might result in a situation whereby the attorney general made appointments of federal judges before whom the government's cases might be tried, brought forth the explanation that such an impression was erroneous. It was declared that the heads of departments might make recommendations, but at best they would act only as buffers for the president, bringing before him a final set of names for each particular office.

Colonel Robert Ewing, Democratic national committee man from Louisiana, was another caller. He came to invite the president to attend the Louisiana state fair next November. Mr. Wilson told the colonel he intended to remain in Washington at work doing little traveling, at least this year.

It was announced that the president had decided to hold regular cabinet meetings on Tuesdays and Fridays of each week, as has been the custom for many years after the official family is fully organized.

When the cabinet meeting ended, President Wilson let it be known through Secretary Daniels that he proposed, so far as possible, to pursue a policy of publicity regarding what takes place around the cabinet table. It is the plan to make public in a formal way hereafter what has been disposed of.

Annapolis cadets have been ordered to shun barber shops and to do their own shaving.

SCORES KILLED IN EXPLOSION

Three Vessels Torn to Pieces by Dynamite at Baltimore.

FOUR STATES FELT SHOCK

Pennsylvania, New Jersey, Delaware and Maryland Shaken by Earthquake as 340 Tons of Dynamite Lets Go.

Baltimore, Md., March 8. — Three hundred and forty tons of dynamite exploded in Lower Baltimore harbor, killing fifty-four men and wounding many more, many of them fatally.

The explosive was being transferred from a barge to the British steamer, Alum Chine, when it went off. The men killed were members of the crews of the steamer and the barge and vessels moored nearby.

The Alum Chine and the barge, together with the tug Atlantic and the naval collier Jason, were either completely destroyed or very seriously damaged.

The shock was felt as far away as Reading, Pa., 100 miles from Baltimore. It was recorded also at Atlantic City. People at first thought an earthquake had occurred. A schoolhouse at Sparrows Point, several miles from the scene of the explosion, was partly destroyed and several of the school children were hurt. Baltimore itself was shaken as if by a powerful tremor. In the center of the city rocks perceptibly.

Scores of vessels hurried to the scene of the disaster to give what aid they could. The explosion was so powerful that pieces of steel weighing fifty pounds were hurled through the air for a distance of four miles. Cases of dynamite were thrown for a great distance from the Alum Chine and exploded as they fell, adding to the damage and destruction.

The injured were removed as speedily as possible to Baltimore. The dock where they were disembarked was a scene of pathetic effort on the part of women and children seeking to learn the names of the dead and to identify the wounded.

The Alum Chine was finishing the loading of a cargo of high explosives for the Panama canal. A lighter with four railroad cars was towed to the side of the vessel and the work of completing the task of loading was expected in a few hours. Nearby were the tug Atlantic and several launches belonging to the ship chandlery, who were engaged in furnishing supplies to the steamship for its across the ocean trip.

Suddenly a puff of smoke came from the hold of the ship. One of the crew noticed it and, appreciating the danger of impending disaster, ran screaming to the deck, followed by the panic-stricken crew or as many as had time to escape from the lower part of the ship.

Right alongside the Alum Chine was the launch Jerome, manned by ship chandler James P. Goodhue. Into this boat leaped fourteen of the British boat's crew and Goodhue turned the boat's little craft away from the burning ship and put off at top speed.

The first puff of smoke was followed by clouds of greater volume. The men on the lighter made every effort to escape. The captain of the Atlantic was too far from the boat to give any assistance and too close to escape its coming down. When the fleeing launch was 200 feet from the Alum Chine the explosion came.

There was a deafening roar as hundreds of tons of explosive went off. Columns of flame shot out from every portion of the vessel and the air was filled with flying wreckage. Pieces of machinery and portions of the hull of the boat, weighing tons, were shot hundreds of feet into the air.

Pieces of iron and steel three feet long and weighing fifty pounds were found at points on the Anne Arundel and Baltimore county shores three and four miles from the scene of the explosion.

The flying wreckage included still unexploded boxes of dynamite, and it is believed that the falling of these on the decks of the Jason and the tug Atlantic was responsible for the terrible damage and loss of life on those vessels.

The superstructure of the naval collier Jason, nearby, was swept away and her side was riddled by the flying metal fragments that had been hurled from the demolished steamer. One of the unexploded boxes of dynamite hurled through the air struck a portion of the upper works of the Jason and exploded. Several men were killed outright and thirty more who were on the collier were frightfully injured.

Another box of dynamite exploded as it landed on the deck of the tug Atlantic. The explosion was followed by fire and three men lost their lives there.

The first bodies and fragments were brought to Baltimore on tugs. With the dead came the living, some of them frightfully mangled. The city police and dozens of physicians immediately set to work.

It is impossible to learn the cause of the disaster. Tales of survivors differ widely. One account tells of fire aboard the car float for twenty minutes before the blast came which tore the big ship apart. Another was that the forehold of the Alum Chine was Marsh Island, off the Gulf coast, southwest of New Orleans, has been purchased by Mrs. Russell Sage and will be turned into a refuge for wild fowl. Control of the island will be placed in the hands of the federal or state government or of an association formed for the purpose. The island is considered one of the most important feeding grounds for wild ducks and geese in the south. Millions of birds have been slaughtered there, and it is thought that under the protection which will be afforded wild fowl will increase at a rapid rate.

first afore No less than 340 tons of dynamite were on the Alum Chine.

In a flash of berisism, men on the collier Jason thought the dead and dying lay about them, tried to go out to the aid of men seen struggling in the river. But the boats were smashed and the men at the point had to stand by and see others drown.

When the explosion rocked Wagner's Point there was a rush to leave the buildings of the Wagner Packing company. Women were knocked down and trampled. Some had to be carried home.

Part of the men whose bodies were found were stevedores; part were members of the crew of the Alum Chine. They were put upon the deck of the Lannan, which started for the Baltimore morgue. The appearance of the dead was terrible. One had lost the top of his head and his arms had been wrenched from the sockets. Another had lost an eye and had a large hole in his head; still others were literally torn to pieces.

Their clothes hung in rags, flapping about them in the sharp breeze which blew over the harbor. The bodies were blackened horribly. When the Lannan reached the wharf the removal of the dead was directed by Captain Ritzmiller, in charge of the morgue.

Opposition to Dr. Friedmann in Philadelphia.

Philadelphia, March 8.—More than 1000 sufferers from tuberculosis have made application to be numbered among the fifty who will be treated for the disease by Dr. Friedmann at the Jewish Consumptive Institute here on March 15.

Dr. Dixon, chairman of the state board of health, declared that Dr. Friedmann will not be allowed to practice on any patients that come to the dispensaries and pure food departments under the control of the state board, and Dr. J. M. Baldi, president of the state board of medical examiners, has said that Dr. Friedmann will not be allowed to open an office in Philadelphia unless he can register first as a physician under the Pennsylvania laws.

The Light That Failed.

It was by an accident that Mr. Kipling got his famous title, "The Light That Failed." He had almost decided to call the novel "The Failure," although he was dissatisfied with this. One evening as he was sitting in his study reading by lamplight the light went suddenly down—almost failed. In fact, in a second Kipling jumped up, exclaiming excitedly, "By Jove, I've got it!" Pointing to the lamp, he said, "The Light That Failed."

AUGUSTUS O. BACON.
Georgia Senator Defeated For President Pro Tempore.

BACON IS OUSTED AS SENATE CHIEF
Democrats Chose Clarke as President Pro Tempore.
Washington, March 8.—Democrats of the senate chose Senator James P. Clarke, of Arkansas, for president pro tempore, over Senator Augustus O. Bacon, of Georgia, by a vote of 27 to 14.
The outcome was a great surprise as it was believed that Senator Bacon would be elected. The caucus which is equivalent to an election in the senate.
The seniority rule was shattered by this action, and the result is taken to indicate that precedent will be set aside in committee designations and that the so-called progressive Democrats will get a big share in the important places to which the "conservative" would be entitled in the ordinary course.
Mr. Bacon is one of the old-line Democrats, and has been in the senate since 1891. Mr. Clarke first appeared in the senate in 1903.
PREFERS DEATH TO WHISKY
Teetotaler Dies Rather Than Touch Liquor.
Sunbury, Pa., March 8.—When told that a little whisky as a stimulant might prolong or save his life, Roy H. Maurey, who was hovering between life and death, after being in a rail road accident, where he lost a leg and an arm, replied that he would rather die than touch a drop of it. In a few minutes his heart ceased to beat.
Maurey had never touched a drop in his life. He was twenty-three years old, and was injured when a draft of cars he was riding as a brakeman, on the Pennsylvania railroad, crashed into a street car, killing William Crist, the motorman.
PROBING OIL TRUST SUIT
McReynolds Will Continue Investigation of Standard.
Washington, March 8.—The Standard Oil investigation, begun during the Taft administration, will be continued by Attorney General McReynolds to determine whether the decree dissolving the giant trust has been violated or not.
A tentative report by Charles B. Morrison and Oliver E. Pagan, the attorneys in charge of the inquiry, is before the new attorney general.
It is known that Messrs Morrison and Pagan have reported that their investigation so far indicates that there is serious doubt whether the "trust" has been actually dissolved.
Breaks Neck in Three-foot Fall.

SWAMPED BY JOB SEEKERS

Tremendous Rush on Cabinet Officials Starts.
Washington, March 8.—There was another tremendous rush of office-seekers on the cabinet officials.
The effect of President Wilson's stand that the cabinet members are to dispose of the offices under them has almost swamped the various department heads with place seekers.
A statistician figured that if every Democrat in congress spent fifteen minutes with a cabinet officer talking about jobs it would take that official a month to listen to all of them.
The general Democratic itch for office is shared by members of the Bryan family, it appears. A cousin of the "Commoner," J. G. Bryan, of Glasgow, Ky., is in Washington seeking a job as surveyor of the port of Louisville.
Norman E. Mack has been offered and has accepted the position of ambassador to Austria-Hungary. Mr. Mack will succeed Richard E. Kerens, of St. Louis. The tender of this position to Mack is in reward for his services as national chairman in 1908 and his services in the recent campaign.
The president received several letters protesting against a possible removal of Julia C. Lathrop, the head of the newly created children's bureau. A movement has been started to obtain this position for Mrs. Robert C. Wickliffe, the widow of a late member of congress from Louisiana.

EMPTIES CUBAN JAILS DESPITE U. S. PROTECT

Gomez Signs the General Amnesty Bill.

Havana, March 8.—President Jose Miguel Gomez signed the amnesty bill in spite of the energetic protest handed to the Cuban government by United States Minister Arthur M. Beaupre.
The protest which American Minister Beaupre made was directed by the present American administration and is taken as an indication that whatever the policy of President Wilson will be in regard to the other Latin American republics there is not likely to be any relinquishment of the responsibility for the administration of law and order in Cuba under the terms of the special treaty between the two countries.
President Gomez in a statement said that he "felt compelled to comply with the wishes of the Cuban people as expressed by the large majority in the Cuban congress."
Instructions will be issued to proceed immediately with the release of all prisoners covered by the bill.

AFTER N. J. GOVERNORSHIP

Governor Fielder Announces Himself a Candidate.
Trenton, N. J., March 8. — James Fielder, who as president of the senate succeeded President Wilson as governor of New Jersey, announced himself as a candidate for the Democratic nomination for governor next fall.
Governor Fielder is the third active aspirant in the field, his opponents being Mayor H. Otto Witpen, of Jersey City, and Frank S. Katzenbach, Jr., of Trenton.
The acting governor said that as soon as the adjournment of the legislature makes it possible he will begin a campaign for the nomination. He expressed confidence that he would be the nominee of the party.

Militant Gets 18 Months.

London, March 8.—Miss Olive Wharry, alias Joyce Locke, a suffragette, was sent to prison for eighteen months at hard labor for participation in the burning of the tea pavilion in Kew Botanical Gardens. At the trial in the Old Bailey, which was attended by a horde of militants, the police evidence was brief, and no defense was offered.

DO YOUR VERY BEST.

And Then Be Sure That You Are Satisfied With Yourself.
It is not what people say about you—it's what you are that counts. The one person in all this world whom you should aim to satisfy is yourself. You alone know yourself. Other people know your outward appearance, your actions, your deeds. You, and you alone, know your motives, your ambitions, your thoughts.
Are you satisfied with yourself? If you are not, are you doing the best you can in your work, that you are making the most of your time? Are you confident that your conduct toward your family, your friends, your neighbors, your employer, cannot be improved? Look yourself straight in the face this morning in your mind's looking glass. Ask yourself whether it is what people say about you or what you are that hurts. Analyze your own conduct in all matters. Put yourself in the other fellow's

The Girl Who Refused to Dance With Me

By THOMAS R. DEAN

When I was a little boy I used to hear a great deal about the family's "halcyon days," as we called them. My father had been both wealthy and prominent, but first his wealth disappeared, and then he died. My mother was anxious to maintain something of our social standing, but found it very difficult to do so on her very limited income. Nevertheless she was determined to bring us up as ladies and gentlemen, and about the only way to refine and polish us, outside of home influence, was to send us to a dancing school.

The scholars were divided into sets, and there was one set, the children of rich parents, many of whom came to the lessons in carriages, attended by their maids. They did not mingle with the other scholars, who came to consider them as something above themselves, too fine and beautiful to touch. But I, having often heard my mother say that we had never associated except with the best, saw no reason why I should take an inferior position.

There was one very pretty little girl among this exclusive set whom I worshipped from a distance. It was the rule of the school—not enforced that any girl must dance with any boy who asked her. One afternoon, when the object of my boyish admiration happened to be left without a partner, I went up to her and made the bow which was considered an invitation to dance. She sat perfectly still. In other words, she declined my invitation.

This was the first rejection I had ever experienced, and it pierced me to the heart. But I have since had reason to consider it a blessing, for it opened my eyes to the fact that there was a position for me to win in the world, and I resolved to win it. The day will come, I said to myself, when I shall live the life my father and mother led in their younger days. I must be successful, and to be successful I must think and act for myself.

I grew up separate and apart from this little girl, but for a time I kept track of her. I learned that her father had made a large fortune out of a patent medicine. Since my own father had been a prominent professional man I felt the injustice of this child of a patent medicine proprietor snubbing the son of a lawyer and statesman. Nevertheless when I saw her rolling about beside her mother in a landau driven by a liveried servant I felt that she had the advantage of me, and I renewed my vow that the advantage should one day be blotted out.

When I was seventeen I had earned and saved enough money to keep me a year in college, and after that I taught night school and won scholarships to carry me through. Upon graduation I studied law and settled in a small but rapidly growing place where there was no great competition and soon sprang into a fine practice.

I had reached a point where there was no difficulty in resuming the social position my family had occupied in the "halcyon days," and, being still comparatively young and a wealthy bachelor, I was somewhat courted by the girls I met in society. Most of them were intent on winning for themselves an establishment before the heyday of youth passed from them. But I knew their tricks and their manners and had no use for them.

Instead of seeking a partner for life to spend my money in a luxurious life I was making love to my stenographer. She was a woman nearly my age and a very intelligent and patient person, whose appearance denoted that she had seen better days. Nevertheless there was that which drew me to her, though I could not tell exactly what it was. One day I asked her something about herself. She told me that she had been born in the same city that I was born in and that her father had lost in speculation a large fortune he had made in a patent medicine.

What need to go further? As I looked into her face I saw what I had not seen before—traces of the features of the little girl who had a score of years before refused to dance with me. And here she was, passing into splendor, dependent upon a pitiful salary that I paid her for doing my drudgery.

The day of vengeance had come, and I resolved to quaff the cup of my dreams. But I kept my counsel. Not a word did I speak to call up in her memory the boy she had snubbed. And this was my revenge. I doubled her salary. She was much astonished. Then I told her that she was working too hard and employed an assistant for her. Her astonishment was increased to wonder.

One afternoon I kept her talking my dictation till all others had left the office, then said to her: "Did you not attend Mr. R.'s dancing school at R. when you were a little girl?"

"I did."

"Do you remember refusing to dance with a boy one afternoon who asked you?"

"No."

"But you did. I am that boy."

I spoke the words calmly and waited for them to impress her, then said: "And now I propose to pay off that snub. I give you a choice between leaving my service and—" I paused. She looked frightened.

"What?"

"Marrying me."

In time she did both.

Is your own fault if you are not. Are you satisfied that you are doing the best you can in your work, that you are making the most of your time? Are you confident that your conduct toward your family, your friends, your neighbors, your employer, cannot be improved? Look yourself straight in the face this morning in your mind's looking glass. Ask yourself whether it is what people say about you or what you are that hurts. Analyze your own conduct in all matters. Put yourself in the other fellow's

PLAIN TALK ON INCENDIARISM

Boston Expert Says We Play With Fire.

LOSS IS $30,000 AN HOUR

In Address in Philadelphia Urging Protective System He Says We Invite Conflagrations.

Philadelphia, March 8.—Franklin H. Wentworth, of Boston, secretary of the National Fire Protective association, and possibly the greatest of American authorities in his field, went hot foot after the high building craze in an address to a representative gathering in the mayor's reception room.

Mr. Wentworth characterized America as a nation that is forever playing with fire, inviting conflagrations and paying for them with the extravagance of a sailor on shore leave, a nation that never has made intelligent use of its fire departments, and that is burning property at a loss of the rate of $30,000 an hour from one year's end to the other, without thinking seriously about it.

New York, said Mr. Wentworth, is no longer a city. It is a disease. It is a community that is constantly courting the greatest holocaust in history. Its craze for high buildings has influenced other cities, and so the day has come when an agitation for a limited building height is found to be entirely too late.

Some of the figures presented were even more eloquent than the distinguished engineer himself. The fire loss in the United States, with the expense of upkeep of fire departments, represents an annual per capita tax of $6. The fire loss in Chicago last year was $5,000,000. In Berlin it was $175,000. Chicago's fire department costs $3,000,000 to maintain; that in Berlin costs $300,000.

The per capita tax on the European continent for the upkeep of fire departments is 33 cents. In the United States it is $3, and the expense from fire loss just about doubles this figure.

One $100,000 fire, said Mr. Wentworth, would shock Europe. Here, if we haven't a few of them a day we feel that something serious is the matter. The fault lies in too much individualism, which has resulted, he said, in reprehensible personal habits. In Germany and France, the man who has a fire in his house must explain to the police, and if the fire gets beyond his control, he must pay his neighbors' damage. Here it is very different.

Mr. Wentworth said that the so-called fire-proof buildings have never proved fire-proof in a conflagration, because they are left with unprotected windows. This is one of the important points he suggested. Windows must be protected so that they will resist a wall of fire; the shingle roof must be abandoned and replaced, and the population must learn to be more careful in its general housekeeping and to enact laws that will make the man with a fire a person for police investigation and possible prosecution.

He commended the action of Philadelphia, which is leading the country in organizing its fire department on preventive work, as well as to fight fires after they occur, and said that therein lies chiefly the remedy for the amazing conditions which always have been tolerated in this country.

TO PAY MINERS BY THE TON

House Passes Bill to Do Away With the Carload System.

Harrisburg, Pa., March 8.—Payment of anthracite miners by the ton of coal mined rather than by the car provided in the Thomas bill adopted by the house.

The vote in the question was 153 to 90, which is considered a signal victory for the miners, who have at different times endeavored to have included in their agreement with the coal operators a provision that they should be paid by the ton.

Charges have been made by the union officials that the cars have grown in size without a corresponding increase in pay for the miners.

Anthracite operators fought bitterly against the Thomas bill, commonly known as the weigh bill, contending that the cost of carrying out the provisions of the bill would run into the millions.

place and try to see your action through his eyes. Imagine that you are your employer instead of yourself. Answer honestly whether if he knew as much about you as you know about yourself he would discharge you or would raise your wages. If you do this conscientiously there are many things you will do differently. Remember this, too—other people's opinion of you is based on your own opinion of yourself. Are you self respecting? Other people will respect you. Are you truthful? The world will believe you. Are you honest? ~

CRABBE, THE NEGLECTED.

A Poet Whom Byron Called Nature's Best and Sternest Painter.

Dante was a great traveler and the greatest pen impressionist who ever wrote. He describes a landscape in a line so that it stays with you forever. He uses the fewest possible number of words, hardly any adjectives, and the picture leaps up before you, immortal and unforgettable. Who can do this among the moderns? Keats could. Tennyson gives you English landscape. If you read "In Memoriam" you have lived a year in the English country and seen the march of the English seasons. Crabbe can do it. Who reads Crabbe? Nobody. And yet he is a wonderful poet, as realistic as Tolstoy and Arnold Bennett. Byron called him the best painter of nature—"Nature's sternest painter, yet her best."

He writes about the poor as they are, without sentimentality and without exaggeration, and as a painter of English landscape he still remains the best. He may not be read by the modern generation, but he is not forgotten. A Frenchman wrote a long and excellent book about him not long ago. He is safe in the temple of fame, which place you have entered and can't leave. And this temple is like a wheel. It goes round and round, and some of its inmates are in the glare of the sun, and sometimes they are in the shade, but they are there, and they never fall out.—Maurice Baring in Metropolitan

Writing For Posterity.

A prominent French critic, the story runs, once said to George Bernard Shaw:

"You are putting on a new comedy, Monday night. Let me attend one of the dress rehearsals, won't you?"

"Impossible," said Mr. Shaw. "My dress rehearsals are always private. I have to refuse even the most distinguished critics access to them."

"But," said the other, "I want to write a critical criticism. If I have to write and telegraph it in a few minutes on Monday night it will be very hurriedly done, and I fear it will give a wrong impression of your comedy to Paris the next day."

"Have no anxiety on that score," Mr. Shaw replied. "My comedies are not written for the next day."—Exchange
